

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A messages and methods for allocating communications network resources including receiving at a first network a message sent (230) from a communications device connected to the first network, assigning the communications device to a second network (240), coordinating and obtaining assignment information from the new network (250, 260), sending an assignment message to the communications device (270), and acquiring the new network (280).